

LOCAL MATTERS.

HAPPENINGS IN AND AROUND THE CITY.

—J. C. May was fined $5 by the mayor yesterday for being drunk and disorderly.

—Messrs. James S. Simmons & Co., real estate agents sold lots in the West End yesterday aggregating $41,000.

—Annie Jones, colored, was arrested by the police last night for being on the public streets at an unseemly hour.

—Nothing was done in the Hustings Court yesterday. The cases of Wm. Ferguson and Joseph Flippin are set for trial today.

—Lottie Shepherd was fined $5 by the mayor yesterday for walking the streets at night and being loud and boisterous in her behavior.

—Hattie Kern, colored, was arrested last night for carrying concealed weapons. A beautiful ivory handle small size six shooter was found on her person.

—A large number of freight cars, which were kept back by the landside on the Shenandoah Valley Railroad near Loch Laird, arrived in the city yesterday.

—Isabell Hill, colored, was arrested yesterday by Officer B. K. Bowers, on the charge of stealing an umbrella. She will have a hearing before the mayor today.

—Mr. John Roan, of Craig County, was in the city yesterday with two beautiful iron gray horses, which he had lately sold to Mr. Duval Adams, of Lynchburg, for $550.

—Mr. J. R. Hockaday, the real estate agent and auctioneer, sold yesterday afternoon two lots on the north side of Campbell-street and extend back 100 feet towards Salem-avenue.

—Mr. W. P. Camp has sold his general merchandise store on Railroad-avenue to Mr. J. P. Ellington, who has been conducting a grocery store on the same thoroughfare for over a year.

—The Blue Ridge Springs correspondent of the Lynchburg Advance says: "Mr. George Houston has purchased other mineral lands on Glade Creek, and is developing rich veins of hematite ores thereon."

—Several scholarships of William and Mary College are at the disposal of Mr. R. U. Derr, superintendent of the public schools of this city, and applicants for such positions would do well to apply to him early.

—The Norfolk and Western pay car arrived here yesterday, and when the employees of the road had been paid off, started for Bristol, from which place it will proceed eastward, making glad the army of men employed by the Norfolk and Western Company as it goes along.

—Evans & Chalmers, the Commerce street hardware dealers, have converted the sash and blind department of the store into a room for glass and putty, and have moved the blinds and sashes to their factory building in the rear. This will give them much more room for the rest of their stock.

—Mr. J. M. Snyder, of Pennsylvania, who is here on a visit to his friend, Mr. B. L. Greider, killed a twenty-four pound wild turkey yesterday while hunting on Bush Mountain.

—Mr. Snyder was accompanied by Mr. Jordan of this city, and together they bagged 41 quail.

—Gent's stiff and felt hats just received at E. Goetz's, 21 Salem-avenue. nov14;

—Gent's fine hand-made shoes at E. Goetz's, 21 Salem-avenue. nov14;

—Rev. Mr. Tyree, of Fincastle, continued his service at the Baptist Church last night. The sermon was a most earnest one, showing clearly the ways of life and death. A number of persons asked for the prayers of the congregation, and some confessions were made. Mr. Tyree will preach again tonight.

—If you want lots in Hyde Park call at once. nov15 if; FRANCIS B. KEMP & Co.

—Boys and children hats at E. Goetz's, 21 Salem-avenue. nov14;

—Mr. J. H. Martin, of Craig County, the candidate for sergeant-at-arms of the House of Delegates lost an arm in a fight on the defenses around Richmond. He was a member of Pickett's division and was on the terrible charge at Gettysburg. With such a record as a soldier he will make a formidable competitor for the position to which he aspires.

—Mr. W. H. Chelsman, on First-avenue, is not in the market garden business but some volunteer pea vines on his place are full of pods and blooms, notwithstanding the heavy frosts and severe cold to which they have been subjected. From this it would appear that green peas can be raised as well in the fall as in the spring.

—Twenty-five and 30 per cent. saved by attending Joseph Cohn's closing sale.

—Hats, caps and umbrellas at E. Goetz's, 21 Salem-avenue. nov14;

—On the arrival of the Norfolk and Western train yesterday evening Mrs. Dr. Childress, of this city, who was a passenger, was attacked with a fainting spell. For a time it was feared she could not recover, but through the exertions of Dr. Leiga Buckner she was restored to consciousness and at last accounts her condition had much improved.

—Attend Joseph Cohn's sixty-day closing sale.

—Ladies' dougola, hand-sewed shoes for $2.50 at E. Goetz's, 21 Salem-avenue. nov14;

—Nora Heath and Gypsy Hayward, colored, females of doubtful character, were yesterday summoned by the mayor to appear before him this morning to answer the charge of keeping disorderly houses. The latter promptly sought out the mayor and pleading guilty to the charge was fined $5. The former declined to follow her example, however, and will have a hearing before his honor at 9 a.m. today.

Two Cleveland Favorites of Fortune.

D. W. Gibbon, 497 Lorain street, held one twentieth of ticket No. 39,526, which drew the second capital prize of $100,000 in the recent drawing of the Louisiana State lottery, September 10. He is a maker of washers at the Upon Nut and Bolt Works. C. A. File, a young mechanic of 25 or 26, who lives on Dent-street, near Wade Park-avenue, and works at the Brush Electric Works, near Wilson-avenue, held one twentieth of ticket No. 69,159, which drew the third capital prize of $50,000.—Cleveland, (Ohio) Sun, October 2.

That young Harvard student who tore down and carried off a lot of signs because, as he explains, the older students told him that was the proper thing to do and that if he didn't do that sort of thing he could not have standing with his fellows—indeed, as he expressed it, would be "nowhere," seems to have succeeded admirably in making an escape from being nowhere. At last accounts he was somewhere, and the best feature of that somewhere was that it had an iron-barred door to it with the padlock on the outside.

When you visit Lynchburg do not fail to call on J. D. Hobbie & Co., dealers in pianos and organs, and examine their large stock. They buy direct from manufacturers and consequently can afford to sell at bottom prices, and on easy terms. Call and see them or write for prices.

How to Keep a Husband at Home in the Evening.

BY W. H. E.

I wonder if those wives who are always complaining and lamenting that their husbands spend so many of their evenings from home have ever seriously examined their own conduct to see if the fault may not, perhaps, be with themselves, and the remedy in their own hands.

In the first place, a man, after working hard all day, naturally desires rest, peace and recreation in the evening, and if he cannot find them in his home he will seek them elsewhere.

For example, a man comes home in the evening, worn out in mind and body, longing for rest and peace, and is met by a wife untidy in dress, long in face, and who, almost immediately, begins a dissertation on the woes of the day, the trouble she has had with the household affairs, the misbehavior of the children, and the endless delinquencies of the servants. He is entertained in this way all during the evening meal, and should he at last lose his temper, and in words more forcible than elegant, tell her to shut up, she is the most injured woman in the whole wide world, and her martyr-like silence and face are even harder to endure than her querulous complaints. Is it any wonder that the man should flee from such a home and such a wife?

Just for experiment, let the wife adopt the following course:

When the time draws near for her husband's return, go and array herself as attractively as she knows how. For a woman can make no greater mistake (and, unfortunately, it is a most common one), than to become indifferent as to how she appears before her husband; that is, if she wishes to retain his love. It is just as important to appear attractive in the eyes of the husband as in the eyes of the lover, and many a man has wondered, miserably, if the slovenly, untidy wife can really be the sweet, tastefully-dressed girl who won his heart, and the first falling off in many a husband's affection may be traced to this very cause.

Then she should meet him with a smiling face and a cheerful, affectionate greeting. No matter what may have been the worries of the day, let her put them out of sight, remembering that her smiling face, and cheerful, affectionate words of greeting may go a long way towards lifting the burden of the far heavier trials he has borne, perhaps, during the day, and let her also remember that querulous complaints and a cheerless home have driven many a man, already burdened with anxiety, not only out of the house but to desperately drown his sorrows in the wine cup. It may require a little self-control on the wife's part to appear happy and cheerful when she is worn out from the worries of the day, but she will be amply rewarded and will also find that those worries will not appear quite so bad when she has spent the evening brooding over and lamenting them.

Then she should consult her husband's taste in the preparation of the evening meal, for there is no surer way to a man's heart than through his stomach, and though it may be a wash-day he does not want to sit down to an unappetizing meal, and, if he is forced to do so, it is more than likely he will want to run down to the club for a little smoke later. And then have his own special sanctum bright, tidy and his papers and pipe close to his hand, and his slippers in a conspicuous place. Nothing irritates a man more than to have his little luxuries misplaced, and then to be told, "that the room was so filthy it had to be cleaned, and that Sarah had burnt the papers, and put his pipe and slippers somewhere out of sight, for that old pipe was a disgrace to the mantel and slippers looked so untidy under the table." He will under such circumstances, probably, consign Sarah to an unmentionable place, and take himself off to the club to read the papers in peace.

Then let her bring her sewing and sit with him, tell him the little bits of news and all the pleasant things that have happened during the day, or listen with interest, feigned or otherwise, to the political news from the paper, and his views upon them, for there are few men who are not fond of airing their views, and though they may like to argue, they also like a smiling, admiring acquiescence to all they may choose to propound.

Let a wife follow, perseveringly, the above directions, and if they fail it is a hopeless case and nothing will keep that man at home in the evenings.
